Answer

Yes

Application Form

Question

What if there are more than five Participants to be included in my application?

Answer

The application form only has space for five Participants, any additional Participants can be included as a separated Word document. Please provide additional Participant details in the same format as in the application form.

Question

I cannot include all publications in the space provided.

Answer

There is a 7,500 character limit for Publications. Please include the most relevant publications to the proposed project in the space provided. A statement indicating the number of additional publications available and that specific details can be provided upon request should also be included in the space provided. Please do not provide any Publications details as a separate document.

Question

Can you be a Responsible Investigator on one application and a Participant on another application?

Answer

Yes, you can be a Participant on any number of applications, regardless of whether you have submitted an application as a Responsible Investigator.

Question

Why do details of the proposed project need to be provided separately as a PDF rather than included in the application form as done previously?

Answer

Due to formatting issues experienced by many applicants in the past, project details will now need to be provided separately as a PDF.

Question

Are there any requirements applicable to the project details PDF?

Answer

Yes, the maximum page length for the project details PDF is nine pages (excluding references) for the Millennium and Coghlan Awards. In addition, the following requirements should be met:

- Font: Times New Roman at least 12pt
- Line spacing: at least Single
- Margins: at least 2 cm; and
